Introduction

The Dormant Assets Scheme protects consumers and prevents forgotten money from becoming lost.

WHAT IS A DORMANT ASSET?

There are many reasons why old bank accounts, insurance or pension policies, investments or individual shares can be lost or forgotten.

Paperwork is easily lost and asset owners pass away. Many people move home several times during their lifetimes. If they don't tell their bank, building society or policy provider when they move, it can be difficult for these organisations to trace and reunite the owner with their money.

This forgotten money is considered to be 'dormant' after an extended period of no account activity or contact between the owner and the financial institution.

This period can vary depending on the type of account or policy. For example, bank and building society accounts are considered dormant after 15 years.

Over the past 11 years, over 40 banks and building societies have joined the Scheme.

What happens to dormant financial assets?

INTRODUCING THE DORMANT ASSETS SCHEME

Dormant money is not lost money. Consumers or their executors or beneficiaries who discover old assets in the future have the right to reclaim this money at any time.

This creates a burden for the banks, building societies, asset managers and insurance and pensions providers involved, as they cannot use the money held in dormant accounts or policies for other purposes.

BANKS AND BUILDING SOCIETIES

The Dormant Assets Scheme (the Scheme) was first established in 2011 through the Dormant Bank and Building Society Accounts Act 2008 as a voluntary scheme for UK banks and building societies.

Banks and building societies who choose to participate need to demonstrate that they have made extensive efforts to trace the original owners and reunite them with their money.

Having done so, they can transfer the value of dormant assets to Reclaim Fund Ltd (RFL), the operator of the Scheme.

RFL invests some of this money to ensure that people can always be reunited with their assets, at any point in the future.

The remainder is released to fund vital social and environmental initiatives across the UK.

Over the past 11 years, over 40 banks and building societies have joined the Scheme, and transferred £1.98bn in dormant assets, of which £982m has been distributed to good causes.

How the Scheme works

REUNIFICATION FIRST

- Consumer protection is the priority.
- Assets are only classed as 'dormant' and made available to the Scheme after attempts to reunite them with their owners.

VOLUNTARY PARTICIPATION

- The Scheme is voluntary to companies in eligible sectors.
- Potential participants can choose whether to contribute to the Scheme and to what extent.

LIFELONG RIGHT TO RECLAIM

- Owners and their beneficiaries can reclaim the amount that would have been due to them had a transfer into the Scheme not occurred at any time.
- RFL ensures that sufficient funds are available so this guarantee can always be fulfilled.
- Customers reclaim the value of assets through their provider, which is reimbursed by RFL.

Expanding the Dormant Assets Scheme

Following the success of the Scheme over the previous decade, it has now been expanded to Insurance & Pensions assets, with other assets to follow in the coming months

The Dormant Assets Act 2022 expands the Scheme to:

- Insurance and Pensions policies
- Investment and Wealth
- Management products, and
- Shares in UK publicly listed companies.

The expansion of the Scheme comes during a cost of living crisis. People are relying more than ever on money they have put away for a rainy day, often many years ago.

By joining the Scheme, financial institutions are committing to extensive reunification efforts, so that people have access to money they need but may have lost or forgotten.

In instances where this can't be done, expanding the Scheme to new sectors could unlock a further £880m to support the UK's most vulnerable individuals and underserved communities and transform lives.

Who operates the Dormant Assets Scheme?

The Scheme is operated by Reclaim Fund Ltd.

RFL OWNERSHIP

RFL is owned by His Majesty's Treasury's (HM Treasury) and is accountable to Government as a public body. UK Government Investments Limited (UKGI) manages HM Treasury's shareholding in RFL.

RFL GOVERNANCE

RFL receives and manages dormant asset monies from financial institutions that choose to participate in the Scheme. This means that the UK Government does not have access to monies transferred into the Scheme.

RFL is legally incorporated with its own legal identity, acting at arm's length from the Government and governed by a separate Board of Directors.

RFL is regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority.

How does the Dormant Assets Scheme benefit consumers?

THE SCHEME OFFERS THREE KEY BENEFITS TO CONSUMERS

Participating institutions must be rigorous in their efforts to trace asset owners and reunite them with their money before transferring money into the Scheme. This means that more people are reunited with lost or forgotten money.

Consumers and their executors or beneficiaries are guaranteed the right to reclaim their money at any time in the future, including any interest or increase in value that has accrued in the meantime.

Money not required to meet future reclaims benefits charities and social enterprises across the UK, enriching the lives of vulnerable individuals and communities.

Who benefits from dormant asset funding?

Funds released from the Scheme are allocated to all four nations of the UK via The National Lottery Community Fund, and overseen by The Oversight Trust.

The Dormant Assets Acts 2008 and 2022 stipulate that dormant assets funding must be subject to the principle of additionality. This means that money cannot be used to fund activities for which central government or local councils are responsible.

The Secretary of State for the Department of Culture, Media & Sport (DCMS) is responsible for setting the policy direction for funds allocated to England.

In Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, the respective governments direct funding to various youth and environmental initiatives.

In England, spending is restricted to three key areas: youth, financial inclusion and social investment.

Focus on these three key areas enables the Scheme to create a lasting legacy, drive systemic change and address deep-rooted social issues.

Money cannot be used to fund activities for which central government or local councils are responsible.

How is dormant asset funding distributed?

Funding is distributed through The National Lottery Community Fund and overseen by The Oversight Trust to the following four organisations:

Better Society Capital

Better Society Capital is the UK's leading social impact investor. Using its knowledge and capital, it collaborates and invests with fund managers who also want to create a better, sustainable future to amplify impact and create lasting change across vulnerable communities in the UK.

Merseyside Youth Association

Improving outcomes for young people facing disadvantage and discrimination

A 130-year-old charity, Merseyside Youth Association (MYA), secured £4.2m in 2022 from the Youth Futures Foundation to tackle youth unemployment.

 The cost of living crisis is hitting young people hard

The cash injection comes at a vital time. The cost-of-living crisis is hitting young people hard at a time when one in ten young people in the country are not in employment, education or training.

The £1.8m financial boost will help fund the delivery of MYA's innovative Talent Match job support programme. More than 1,600 long-term unemployed 18-24-year-olds based in the Liverpool city region will benefit from a range of services, including specialised mental health support and bespoke employment guidance.

Veterans at Ease

Social investment to support veterans' mental health

Veterans at East secured a blended finance deal of £35k through the Access Foundation.

www.veteransatease.org/

Veterans at Ease provides free therapy and support to men and women who serve, or who have served in the armed forces, to deal with Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) and other combat stress-related issues.

Garreth Murrell, a veteran with 10 years service including tours of Bosnia and Northern Ireland, set up the charity in 2011 to offer veterans access to neuro-linguistic psychotherapy, a service not available on the NHS.

In July 2017, the charity was on the verge of closure but the prospect of setting up a trading arm offered a lifeline.

The organisation now has five charity shops in the North East, the proceeds of which pay for the rent and running costs at their two on-premise therapy centres.
